The Orange Group - COOKIES POLICY

Applicability

These terms of use apply to every visit to this website of The Orange Group and to all services done or provided through this website. By using the website, you agree to this disclaimer.

Cookies

When you use this website, information about your use of these websites may be collected by us and/or by third parties, through the use of cookies. The great thing is that this information is completely anonymous! A cookie only remembers your preferences and interests, so we can make our website even better. There are two types of cookies on The Orange Group website:

1. Functional cookies

Functional cookies are necessary for (parts of) our website to work properly. Think for example of the cookies from YouTube that ensure that you can view our videos on our website.

2. Analytical cookies

For us, the analytical cookies from Google Analytics are important. This is because without this anonymous data, we cannot improve the website. Google may provide this information to third parties if Google is legally required to do so, or to the extent that these third parties process the information on Google's behalf. By using this website, you consent to the processing of the information by Google. This processing only serves the purpose described above.

Please note that we have no control over these websites and their security and are not liable for damages resulting from the use or content of these external websites to which our website links.
